

OCTOBER STORIES 2025

Namaste.

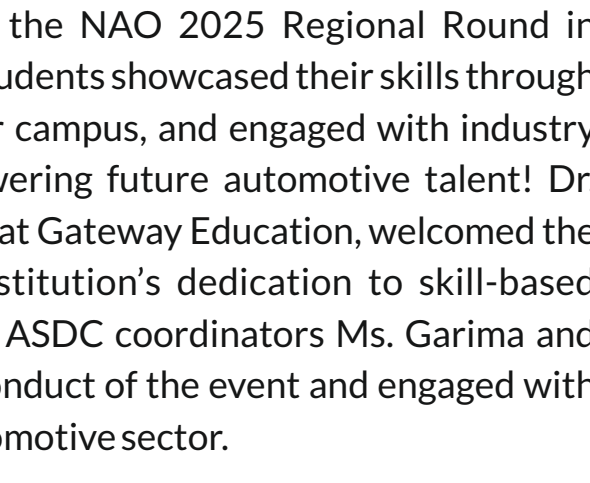

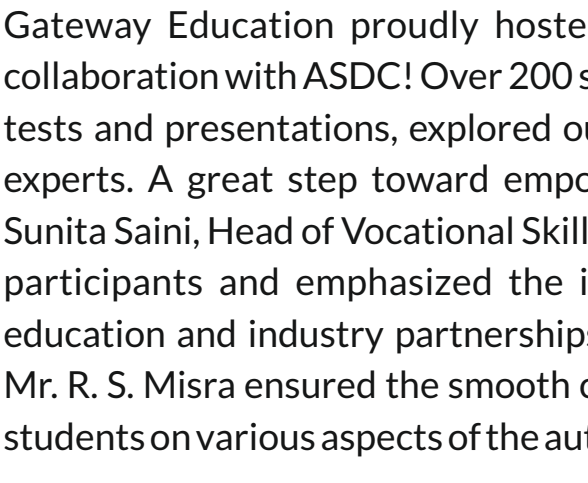

October arrives like a quiet reverie—an elegy to light and a hymn to change. The world seems suspended between motion and stillness, wrapped in the soft amber glow of fading days. Trees now stand fully adorned in crimson, gold, and russet, each leaf a whisper of impermanence. The air carries a cool clarity, touched with the faint scent of woodsmoke and earth, as if the season itself is exhaling the last warmth of the year. Fields lie in patient rest, and evenings deepen into contemplative silence. There's a sacred intimacy in October—the tender hush before the long sleep of winter. It teaches us the beauty of release, the grace in letting go, and the quiet power of transformation. October does not rush; it lingers, breathing softly between abundance and absence, reminding us that every ending holds the promise of renewal.
